PREFACE

This bibliography of books and periodical references on Collective Bargaining in Higher Education has been compiled entirely from available resources of the California Polytechnic State University Library at San Luis Obispo. This material is probably available in the campus libraries at all California State Universities and Colleges.

Books and articles are arranged in one alphabet. This bibliography covers the period from the late 1960s to the present. Collective bargaining rights for the faculty in higher education became law in California when Governor Jerry Brown signed Assembly Bill Number 1091. This Bill, introduced by Assemblyman Berman on March 24th, 1977, was amended several times with the final amendment by the Senate on August 28, 1978.

This is one of a series of bibliographies which the Cal Poly Library plans to publish and distribute as a service to the campus. The series, published irregularly, is intended to provide the academic community with bibliographic information on subjects of current or special interest. The bibliographies, both systematic and descriptive, are compiled by librarians, faculty, staff and students. The selection of subject matter and the standards of bibliographic citations are reviewed and approved by the Library Bibliographic Committee. Suggestions or offers to compile the bibliographies are welcome.

We hope you will find this particular bibliography and the series informative, interesting and useful.
